CLASHES LIVEN BACKUS HEARING

Five Hurt by Blast, Fire on State Street

A terrific explosion in a flaming State street building hurled two firemen from a ladder, injuring one critically, and blasted another down a flight of stairs today as a three-alarm blaze menaced the heart of the market district.

Two other firemen also were injured, receiving severe cuts and bruises, and one sustained burns. The casualties are:

John R. Skeffington, 34, of Ladder 8; burns on arms, contusions of back and chest, spine injuries; thrown from ladder.

Martin Callaghan, 37, of Rescue Company 3; first and second degree burns of head, ears and hands; blown down stairway.

Thomas J. Wren, 37, Engine 25; burns on both arms.

HURLED INTO STREET

Sampson and Skeffington were catapulted 45 feet into the street from an extension ladder when quantities of rubber cement in the third floor of the burning building exploded.

With a thundering blast, windows blew out, fragments of debris flew across Commerce and State streets.

Sampson and Skeffington were attacking the blaze from the Commerce street end. Callaghan was a member of a crew pouring water from a stairway on the State street side. Force of the blast knocked him down the stairs.

FLAMES REACH ROOF

Fed by inflammable construction materials, the flames raced from the third floor to the sixth, then burst through the roof.

All six floors of the Commerce street end of the building were occupied by the Harkins Lumber Company, while a meat slicing establishment was located on the State street end.

Smoke and water damaged an adjoining building, occupied by an importing concern. Fire Chief Samuel A. Pope estimated damage at $5000.

BRITISH PUSH PACT WITH REDS

LONDON, May 10 (INS)—In a move to clarify Russian doubts and speed inclusion of the Soviets in the anti-Fascist bloc, Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain today assured Russia it would not have to defend the eastern European states alone.

Moscow's demands that Britain and France guarantee aid for Russia if the Soviets went to war for Poland and Rumania were based on a misunderstanding, Chamberlain told the House of Commons.

EXPLAINS BRITISH STAND

"Britain recently accepted a definite obligation with respect to certain eastern European states.

(Chamberlain referred to Britain's unilateral pledge to defend the independence of Poland, Rumania, Greece and Turkey in the event an of those countries felt independence sufficiently menaced to fight).

"Britain did not invite the Soviets to participate, in view of the difficulties which would inevitably arise.

"Accordingly, it was suggested that the Soviets make a declaration in this sense: that in the event Britain and France were involved in hostilities in discharge of their obligations, the Soviets would express readiness also to lend assistance."

Russia had argued that British proposals to Moscow mentioned no assistance for the Soviets from France and Britain if Russia, defending Poland or Rumania, became involved in a war with Germany.

REJECT 3-POWER PLAN

The prime minister reiterated his explanation that Russian aid for eastern European states was sought only in case France and Britain sped to their assistance first.

Confirming that Britain had rejected an outright three-power military alliance, and had refused to give the Soviets any guarantees in the Far East, Chamberlain explained:

"Almost simultaneously, the Soviets suggested a more comprehensive and more rigid scheme,

DON'T LOOK NOW---BUT IT'S SPRING

With the thermometer touching 70 at 11 a. m. and still climbing, many Bostonians shed their outer wraps today as they enjoyed the season's warmest day.

The warm spell reached far up the coast of Maine, carrying with it a slight undercurrent of alarm in the Maine interior, where a rainless fortnight bred fears of forest fires. The temperature was expected to reach the middle 70's in Portland.

Forecasts for Boston promised fair, but slightly cooler weather for tonight and tomorrow, with the mercury dropping to the middle 50's during the night.

Roosevelt Suffers Another Sinus Cold

WASHINGTON, May 10 (AP)—President Roosevelt stayed away from his office today to doctor a sinus cold, the third in recent months. White House officials said it was not serious and that the President had no fever.

He devoted the morning to dictating a radio speech he will deliver on a New York program tonight, dedicating the new Museum of Modern Art.

'Blue Sky' Director Fights Ouster Charge

Frequent clashes between Chairman Frank M. McKeown of the Public Utilities Commission and Defense Counsel Joseph A. Scolponeti marked today the open session of a hearing through which Governor Saltonstall seeks ouster of John H. Backus as director of the "blue sky" division.

OUSTER HEARING — Attended by his counsel, Joseph Scolponeti (left), John H. Backus appears at public hearing today

One clash also occurred between McKeown and one of his associate commissioners, Richard D. Grant, the latter reminding that the commission should be "bound by the rules of fairness."

It is charged by the governor that Backus, at a legislative hearing, "impugned" the motives of the governor and said Saltonstall had been guided by Harcourt Amory, State street broker, in seeking to abolish the securities division.

LOSES FIRST SKIRMISH

Scolponeti—although it was no more than expected, because it was a technicality and formality—lost the first skirmish of the hearing when he failed in a motion to have the charges against Backus dismissed, contending they do not constitute grounds for removal.

After a brief executive session, Chairman McKeown announced that the commission would reserve its decision.

Scolponeti did succeed, however, in gaining admission from the commission that the proceedings did not involve any question of Backus' competence or honesty.

The first witness called was Charles E. Currier, reporter for the State House News Service, who reported the committee hearing at which Backus spoke against the governor's bill to abolish the securities division.

REPORTER TESTIFIES

According to Reporter Currier, he heard Backus declare he knew who fathered the recommendation for abolishing the division, but he

Must Become Dad or Forfeit $100,000

PITTSBURGH, May 10 (AP)—A mother in her will today gave an estate of $100,000 to her son on the condition that he become the father of children—if he does not the estate goes to the American Bible Society.

The stipulation was made in the will of Mrs. Kate O. Findley, who died February 28. The son is Paul B. Findley of Flushing, L. I., a telephone company employe.

Bentley, Developer Of War Tanks, Dies

LONDON, May 10 (AP)—Captain Bede Bentley, who had a hand in developing the military tank and who taught the one-time Emperor Menelik of Abysinia to drive an automobile, died today. (The tank developed by Britain first was used in 1916.)

COAL SHORTAGE THREATENS N. E. TRAINS, INDUSTRY

Curtailed passenger train service and industrial plant shutdowns were threatened throughout New England today as soft coal operators and miners' representatives sought to end a deadlock which kept 460,000 bituminous workers idle in 26 states.

While President Roosevelt urged a quick coal peace, with implied warning of federal intervention, the Boston & Maine railroad here announced it might be obliged to cut passenger train service after May 21, for lack of locomotive fuel.

In a later announcement the road retracted, however, and said the present supply was sufficient until June 15 and that more was on the way.

The second announcement added that they hoped for no curtailment.

PLANTS FACE CLOSING

Industrial shutdowns, particularly in small plants, were predicted by officers of the New England Coal & Coke Company, large bituminous coal distributing firm.

"We do our best to supply the more needy of our customers," one spokesman for the company said.

"That means we get a 'must' order and then go out in the open market and try to pick up a carload here or there from an independent dealer.

"But the situation is growing more critical daily. It won't be long before many firms must pull their fires and shut up shop. That'll mean thousands of workers idle."

SUPPLY VERY SHORT

Dealers here said jobbers at Hampton Roads, Va., clearing depot for most soft coal coming to New England, reported themselves 60,000 to 80,000 carloads short of demand.

City Hospital and Massachusetts General Hospital officials were unworried today, since both those institutions use fuel oil.

The Carney Hospital, however, reported itself dependent for a weekly coal supply on ability of Boston dealers to fill a regular Thursday order.

MERCY KILLER — Louis Greenfield (right) is shown with wife, Anna, and Attorney Samuel Liebowitz in court.

Killed Own Son 'Because I Loved Him,' Sobs Dad

NEW YORK, May 10—"I killed him because I loved him," said Louis Greenfield today before putting his head into his hands and weeping on the witness stand in the courtroom where he is being tried on a manslaughter charge for ending the life of his 17-year-old imbecilic son with chloroform.

Greenfield, 40-year-old wholesale milliner, talked of the boy's suffering through 17 years of life and said the ordeal of having an idiotic son was "no burden at all" to himself or his wife, who previously had testified how doctor bills kept the parents virtually penniless.

"My thoughts were worse than any physical burden," said Greenfield. "I used to have other dreams—with a voice, like the voice of God saying, 'Stop his suffering—If you love him, stop his suffering.'

"If he could go to sleep, just go to sleep, he wouldn't be tormented any longer. . . . I killed him."

TOLD SON MUST DIE

Taking the stand after several character witnesses had testified to his good reputation, Greenfield told of his happiness when his son was born:

"I had dreamed, planned for that baby. When it was a boy, I was very happy. No, I didn't suspect at first that there was anything wrong."

Not until the child was three months old did the father begin to suspect the tragic truth.

"His head would roll from side to side, and he couldn't do anything with his hands," he testified. "He was like a lump of putty."

At the age of 5, Jerry hadn't learned to walk.

"We'd hold his hands, my wife and I, and show him how to move his feet," the accused father said. "And then one day a specialist told me there was no hope whatsoever for the boy, as long as he lived."

CHURCH IN SPLIT AS FRIENDS BACK OUSTED PASTOR

Dissension between opposing groups in the Prospect Congregational church, Cambridge, grew increasingly bitter today, as Vergil S. Gerber, organist and "musical minister," was reported determined to resign in protest against the dismissal of Rev. John A. Huffman, pastor.

Only 27 years old and a former assistant pastor of the Park Street Church, Boston, Rev. Mr. Huffman charged he was fired because he wouldn't preach "watered gospel."

The vote to drop him from his Prospect Congregational Church post was 119 to 76, with the minority faction vigorously protesting against action being taken under the circumstances.

PRAISES PASTOR

Speaking for the minority, Mrs. Edna V. Poole of Prospect street, Cambridge, said today:

"Rev. Huffman was too religious for some parishioners. He did wonderful work for our church. He put new life in our prayer meetings. God sent him to us. Those who voted to dismiss him rejected God's offer.

"I shall never attend the Prospect Congregational Church again, and there are many other long-time members who feel as I do."

Mrs. Poole said Organist Gerber, who also officiates at the church as lay preacher, told her today he was quitting his post, in sympathy with Rev. Huffman.

RESTS ON CAPE

No new pastor has yet been called, Mrs. Poole said, but she expected a temporary pastor would be assigned by Congregational headquarters in Boston.

Rev. Mr. Huffman was resting on Cape Cod today. Before he left Cambridge, he said:

"It was a clearcut spiritual issue. I was the victim of persons who talked behind my back, trying to tell me what I should preach.

"Apparently they wanted their gospel watered. I gave them the orthodox gospel—and I made no apologies!"

Takes Back No. 8 In 'Last Marriage'

MRS. NINA M. C. GRAVES WITH BILLY L., HUBBY NO. 8

LOS ANGELES, May 10 (INS)—"Mid tears and kisses, the whirlwind "it-is-it-isn't" three-day marriage of Billy Graves, youthful musician and his eight-time married bride was on again today.

"It's my last marriage—and it's going to last."

So declared the new Mrs. Graves, 28-year-old attractive blonde, who also has had the names of De Milo, Canfield, Martin, Monroe and Colton (she married Colton and Martin twice), after she had welcomed her bridegroom back in tearful reconciliation.

An hour-by-hour report of the turbulent marital venture, now facing calm seas and smooth sailing, goes something like this:

Saturday, 4:17 p. m.—They get married in Yuma, Ariz.

Sunday, 3:36 p. m.—Honeymooners return to Hollywood.

Sunday, 5:48 p. m.—Her last ex-husband, Derrel L. Colton, phones.

Sunday, 6:26 p. m.—He calls again.

Monday, 11:57 a. m.—And again.

Monday, 12 noon—Graves storms out of house. It's all over, he says.

Tuesday, 4:16 p. m.—He comes back. They kiss and make up.

"It was just a misunderstanding, and now it's all cleared up," smiled the much-married Mrs. Graves.

"Yes, that's right," added Mr. Graves. "I guess I was a little hasty."

JURY SIFTS FACTS IN POISON CASE

MRS. VICTORIA LE FEBVRE Faces Trial

FITCHBURG, May 10—An array of government witnesses today awaited their turns to appear before a grand jury, which began consideration of the murder charge against Mrs. Victoria LeFebvre, 53, accused of poisoning her third husband, Fleurient LeFebvre.

Since her arrest a month ago, the Ashburnham widow has been held without bail in Worcester County jail.

At every opportunity, she has declared her innocence. There was no reason, she said, why she should have taken her husband's life.

State police officials who seized the woman at a neighbor's home admitted that possible motives seemed scarce, but in charging her with murder they pointed to a police chemist's report that the dead man's body contained traces of strychnine.

Barrymore's Loves 'Not Counted Yet'; Advises Marriage

CHICAGO, May 10 (AP)—John Barrymore buried his matrimonial troubles under a burst of witticisms today and made it ironically plain he was by no means through with romance.

Employing an imagery of speech that was always piquant and sometimes Elizabethan in its raciness, the four-times married actor said in an interview that a few marital failures should cause no man to feel unduly depressed.

Becoming fairly lyrical in spots, Barrymore put it this way:

"I am told that among stamp collectors the rarest and most precious item is the Ecuadorian blue. Does the collector stop collecting simply because he fails repeatedly to get that most desirable of all stamps?

"No, he carries on the pursuit. He knows that there ARE Ecuadorian blues. That's the way it is with marriage."

FAVORS CAREER WOMEN

Barrymore asserted he was unreservedly a partisan of marriage to career women. In his words:

"I believe in women having a career—and how! All women should have careers, and most of them want careers. At least all modern women that men would like to marry want to work.

"Certainly a career is better for a woman than marrying a banker in Detroit or some other place. What a life for a woman—staying home and supervising the making of soup. Hasn't that sort of thing gone out of style?"

DENIES WIFE SPANKING

Commenting on reports that his stage spanking of Elaine Barrie Barrymore in a St. Louis performance of his current farce, "My Dear Children," had been too realistic, Barrymore averred:

"One doesn't do things like that in public. And I've never yet spanked a woman in private. It's too depicting. Moreover, my activities have been in exactly the opposite direction."

Beyond observing that his marriage to Elaine Barrie was a "really adventure," he had nothing to say about his court action against his wife, asking a separation and accusing her of conspiring with her mother and her financial adviser to defraud him. The suit demanded an accounting of $300,000.

SALEM, May 10—Resolutions opposing foreign entanglements, favoring public observance of Good Friday and a continued fight against obscene pictures and literature were passed here by 450 delegates at the 45th annual state convention of the Knights of Columbus at Hotel Hawthorne.

In choosing officers for the coming year, the delegates re-elected State Deputy John J. Spillane, of Worcester, and granted another term to all other state officers except auditor, that post going to Lawrence W. Kenney, of Springfield.

Those re-elected included State Secretary Walter G. Powers, Taunton; State Treasurer Thomas F. McGrath, Newburyport; State Advocate Frank W. Tomasello, Dorchester, and State Warden Harold G. Jackson, Belmont.

Pays Tax Bill, Lands in Court

A post-dated check is not the best payment in the world for a tax bill, Dominic Leone, 50, of Hawthorn st., Newton, discovered today.

Leone was sentenced to 10 days in the House of Correction following complaint in Newton court by Deputy Tax Collector Louis Ebb that he had paid a tax bill last March with a check dated two weeks after date of the payment.

The check bounced, Ebb told the court.

Leone appealed, contending that since he had received no material benefit from the check, there was no larceny involved.

Ancient Slates Brought to U. S. For Penn House

NEW YORK, May 10 (AP)—Two ancient roofing slates from the birthplace of William Penn at Warminghurst, Sussex, England, arrived today in the S.S. American Farmer for installation in the William Penn memorial house in Philadelphia.

The slates were brought to this country by Mrs. R. O. Mennell, of Philadelphia, a member of the Society of Friends.

Longshoremen gingerly carried the package down the freight gangplank to the pier; then, turning it over, blinked when they read a label:

"Over 300 years old, value $1."

The stones are two feet long by one foot, three inches wide.

Dr. Bradwell H. Flower, assistant state commissioner of mental health, announced the patient was captured by Middleton police officers after she had broken into a small camp in that town and had set fire to her own clothes with matches she found in the kitchen. The burns were not fatal.

NEW PLAN MAY END COAL WAR

NEW YORK, May 10 (AP)—Soft coal operators and miners, seeking to comply with President Roosevelt's demand that they find by tonight a way to reopen closed mines in 26 states, today studied a definite formula designed to break their long deadlock.

As representatives of the two sides met with Federal conciliators after yesterday's conference with the President, there was no indication what the plan was.

However, sources close to both groups said they saw no immediate possibility of a resumption of mine operations under a tentative agreement.

Dr. John R. Steelman, director of the U. S. conciliation service, who has participated in the contract negotiations for several weeks, remained optimistic that an agreement of some sort would be reached.

"I think you can reassure the country," he said, "that some settlement here is under way."

"In accordance with the President's statement to the joint conferees yesterday," Dr. Steelman add, "my position in the conference today is one of imperatively demanding a solution of this situation with the time limit as set."

Steelman interpreted Mr. Roosevelt's demand for a solution by tonight as a midnight deadline and indicated the conferees would remain in session almost continuously.

NAB BAY STATERS ON 'CRIME TOUR'

A "See America First" trip, allegedly financed by a coast-to-coast crime wave, was ended abruptly for two Lawrence youths and their two girl companions in Sioux Falls, S. D., today, with one boy in jail and the other hotly pursued by Northwest police.

The amazing story of their adventures was told by Daniel Edward Connors, 21, according to Detective Maurice Nelson of the Sioux Falls force.

While Conners was awaiting his court appearance today on larceny charges, police were reported closing in on his companion, named by Conners as Ralph Harris, 23, also of Lawrence.

FIVE WEEKS ON TRIP

By long distance telephone, the Sioux Falls police described to the Boston Evening American the crime excursion of the pair.

They set out from Lawrence five weeks ago, making their way through Tennessee and the Mississippi valley to Texas. From the South they worked west to California, they said.

All along the route, Connors was quoted as saying, they left a trail of petty thievery. They picked up radios, four saddles, a rifle and other loot to help "meet expenses," police charged.

Turning eastward, the pair reached the north central states and struck up the acquaintance of two girls, both comely blondes from Wisconsin, Enid Williams, 28, of Green Bay, and Lovera Grothompson, 26, of Waupaca County.

The quartet then journeyed north, police said, making a roadside cabin outside Sioux Falls their "base of operations."

HUNT ON FOR HARRIS

Conners and the girls were taken into custody while state police of North and South Dakota and Minnesota searched for Harris, believed fleeing in the missing car, the American was told.

Booked for larceny, Conners revealed his entire adventure, police said, in a 2000-word statement.

The girls were charged with vagrancy and sentenced to 30 days each.

Lawrence police today expected word from South Dakota regarding the youths' escapade. Two boys by their names were said by Lawrence authorities to possess larceny records.

Chicago Policeman, Shot by Bandit, Dies

CHICAGO, May 10 (INS)—Policeman Philip Kelly, wounded during a gun battle with bandits who attempted to hold up a Chicago tavern last week, died today. He was the second victim of the shooting to succumb.

Kelley's death came soon after the accused killers, Orville Watson, 29, and Edward Riley, 37, had signed confessions, according to police. After the shooting, the killers forced a doctor, at gun-point, to remove a bullet from one bandit under an "operate or die" order.

HIGH SCHOOL HERO HELD AS PART TIME HOLDUP MAN

SANFORD, Me., May 10—Sanford High's baseball team lost its star player today.

He was George Steele, Jr., member of the senior class, who with his classmate, Donald G. Gilpatrick, pleaded guilty in municipal court to breaking and entering Edward Moulton's filling station in April.

Both boys were ordered held for the grand jury in bonds of $1000 each by Recorder J. Armand Gendron.

Moulton was found tied and gagged in his gasoline station. Police said the youths overpowered him, then stole $26 and fled in his auto, which was later recovered.

In a clean-up of petty breaks and thievery, police also arrested Aldege Thibeault and Perley Madore, both of whom were held for the grand jury.

OPERATE TO SAVE SKI STAR

One of the most delicate operations known to surgery took place today at City Hospital, where Dr. Donald B. Munro, famous brain specialist, was called upon to try and save the life of Herbert Osborne, 21, of Salem, rushed here in a private ambulance from North Conway, N. H.

Carried down the mountain to North Conway by two companions, he was examined by Dr. Harold Shedd, who ordered the emergency trip to Boston.

SALEM HIGH STAR

Osborne, a former Salem High basketball star, was believed to have sustained a fractured skull and possible brain injury.

Full details of the accident were not available. The young instructor's two companions were around a bend in the trail from the spot where Osborne slithered off balance and plummeted from the trail.

The youth's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hubert P. Osborne of Lafayette street, Salem, were at the hospital when the ambulance bearing their son arived. They said they knew nothing of the circumstances.

SECOND ACCIDENT

The youth's father, who is an electrical contractor said the accident was the second in which his son has figured since he became an Appalachian Mountain Club instructor last February.

In the other mishap, Osborne escaped with an injured leg.

Student Pilot Hurt In Crash of Chair

Emile H. J. Boasey, Jr., 20, of Hingham, who is studying at Boston airport to learn how to handle planes, had a bit of difficulty in controlling a chair and as a result suffered possible concussion of the brain.

CHILD HURT IN 25-FT. FALL

Losing her balance while playing on the third-floor veranda of her home, 6-year-old Jennie Kappler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Kappler of Cross st., Somerville, plunged 25 feet to the ground.

Takes Chance On Check: Seeks Owner of $204

His fare asked him to cash the check at a nearby bank, saying he would meet him there to settle the bill. The check was good, and Tucker waited until his meter ticked up to $7.75.

Now, three days later, Tucker has $204.25 change for a man whose present address the bank was unable to furnish.

Paderewski Recital Tonight

Dismissing as "nonsense" the report that he was suffering from arthritis, Ignace Paderewski, Poland's grand old man of the piano and politics, today awoke after a restful night spent among the roar of trains and the rattle of switching engines at South Station.

Untroubled by temperament, the veteran musician slept peacefully in his private railroad car in a noisy railroad yard and woke ready to make his long-awaited appearance tonight on the Boston concert platform at the Boston Opera House.

The arthritis which was reported to have been hampering Paderewski was explained as a tightening of the tendon in his right hand as the result of the strain of his daily two-hour practice sessions. However, he eats heartily, rests well and finds his program of two concerts per week well within his range of endurance.

Breaking his customary silence on international events Paderewski, former Polish President, gave hearty endorsement to the stand taken toward Germany by Colonel Joseph Beck, Polish foreign minister.

"His views on Polish policy, Paderewski said, "are essentially the same as those I have long wished and expected him to share and express."

DERRINGER SUED OVER PARTY ROW

NEW YORK, May 10 (AP)—Paul Derringer, husky star pitcher of the Cincinnati baseball team testified today that in order to make a long distance call to Cincinnati from Philadelphia in 1935 it was necessary for him to "shove as hard as I could" against Robert E. Condon, a 43-year-old industrial engineer.

Derringer, defendant in a $25,000 personal injury suit brought by Condon, said Condon was interrupting his call. The pitcher denied that he was under the influence of liquor and denied, too, that he had attempted to break into a party across the hall from his Bellevue-Stratford Hotel room, as the engineer had charged.

CHARGES INJURIES

The plaintiff said the altercation arose when Derringer was refused admission to the party.

At the time of the alleged assault, Condon was in Philadelphia as chairman of Mayor F. H. LaGuardia's committee to bring the American Legion convention to New York City in 1937, which he succeeded in doing.

TESTIFIES OF CLASH

Condon testified he was in his own room with Secretary Woodring and other guests at 11:30 a. m. when Derringer, in his shirt-sleeves, knocked at the door and demanded to know why Condon was attempting to run an "exclusive" party.

Condon said when he tried to close the door in Derringer's face, the six-foot, 200-p und athlete punched him behind the ear, knocked him down and jumped on him.

Returns to Ma With Gallon Of Oil—After 31 Years

WHEATLAND, Pa., May 10 (INS)—Three decades of heartbreak and longing were ended in happiness today for Mrs. Veronica Kesey, 74.

Thirty-one years ago, Mrs. Kesey sent her son, Anthony, then 13, to a local grocery store to buy a gallon of kerosene. The lad never returned and was given up for dead.

So the aged widow wasn't thinking of the past as she answered a sharp knock on her door. The strange man on the threshold held a one-gallon can in his hand, and when he spoke he said:

"Mother, it's Tony—and I've brought your coal oil."

Mrs. Kesey almost fainted, but was able to whisper:

"Yes, Tony, I know it's you."

Kesey, now 44, said he worked on farms in neighboring Ohio as a runaway, later became a wrestler traveling with carnivals, and recently had been living in Florida.

Somehow, he "never got around to" writing or returning home.

Seek Sainthood For Indian Girl

VATICAN CITY, May 10 (AP)—The Congregation of Rites opened discussion today on pleas for beatification of Kateri Tekawitha, American Indian girl who lived two and a half centuries ago and was known as "The Lily of the Mohawks."

Shortly before the late Pope Pius XI died, he was presented with numerous petitions from American Indians asking that the girl be declared worthy of veneration and expressing hope she might eventually be proclaimed a saint.

Born in Montgomery County, New York, in 1656, Kateri Tekawitha died in 1680 after a life marked by great piety.

Fr. Flanagan Joins 'Saints and Sinners'

NEW YORK, May 10 (AP)—The Rev. Father Edward J. Flanagan, founder of Boys Town, Neb., became a "fall guy" today of the Dexter Fellows Tent, Circus Saints and Sinners Club of America. He was initiated with the club president, former Governor Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey, presiding. Tony Sarg, the illustrator, and "Tex" O'Rourke, author, aided in the initiation.

JINX RUINS 2D HOME IN 8 MONTHS

SWANSEA, May 10 (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Earl Evans lost their second home in eight months today when a gas explosion wrecked their seven-room dwelling after police reported, a steam shovel working in the street struck a gas main.

Mrs. Evans suffered severe sh ck shock and was assisted from the house before flames destroyed it.

So severe was the blast that the rear wall was blown 50 feet and part of the front of the house was lifted in the air and dropped on a passing truck.

Mrs. Theodore Bresult, a neighbor, required medical treatment because of shock.

Eastern States Join Probe of Poison Ring

PHILADELPHIA, May 10 (AP)—Two rings in the murder market, selling death for cash or a percentage of insurance, reached from Philadelphia throughout the east to mask their crimes and find new clients, detectives disclosed today as they said they foresaw no end to the "endless chain" investigation.

The highest official estimate of the possible victims of the rings has been "up to 100." Thirty-five to forty known victims definitely are listed.

Authorities summed up developments as follows:

1—Twenty-four persons, half of them widows of alleged victims, are in jail on charges of murder or conspiracy.

2—Deaths have been traced as far back as eight to ten years through traces of poison in exhumed bodies.

TRACE NEW CLUES

3—Poison—sometimes a hemlock poison and again a mixture of more modern poisons known to one ring as "Witch's Brew"—was the principal agent of death. But in some cases men marked for death were killed by automobiles; by drowning off the Jersey coast; or were sandbagged, then shoved down stairs.

4—Already persons from outside Pennsylvania are numbered among the prisoners, and deaths in states along the northeastern seaboard are being investigated.

5—In some cases relatives of victims were killed to safeguard secrets of the ring.

6—The rings operated most often in large cities, picking its clients and victims from families foreign born or approachable through witchcraft practices and deep-rooted superstitions.

PROBE "DEATH LIQUID"

Only in the past few days did investigators dig up traces of the second slaying syndicate. They termed it the "Guild of Death" and said its members, none of whom has been arrested, apparently had a flat rate for murder—demanding pay in advance.

The alleged operations of the guild of death were disclosed by an investigator who said one of the 24 held had admitted he acted as "procurer" of poison for both rings.

The investigator said the second group was directed by "five or six" principals and, like the insurance ring, poisoned its victims.

At the same time, Assistant District Attorney Vincent P. McDevitt, one of the state's chief investigators of the insurance murders, announced detectives had been questioning a "key witness."

Screams Rout Armed Prowler

An armed prowler was routed from the grounds of her home early today by her screams, Mrs. Florence E. Magann, wife of Frank Magann, manager of the Cambridge Yellow Cab Company, whose drivers have been on strike for more than three weeks, reported to police.

The incident occurred between visits of the route officer, assigned to keep a special watch on the Magann home in Palfrey road, Belmont, following telephoned threats of violence to the cab company executive.

Mrs. Magann told police she was aroused by noises in the front yard. Looking out the window, she saw a man who was apparently armed, she declared, and she screamed. The man bolted.

Later, a man's voice said to her over the telephone, "Your husband better look out or he'll get shot," Mrs. Magann reported.

Doctor Drops Dead As He Wields Scalpel

NEW YORK, May 10 (INS)—A Brooklyn doctor dropped dead today while removing the tonsils from a woman patient who lay unconscious under an anaesthetic.

Stricken with a heart attack, Dr. Isadore Shulman, 60, fell to the floor of his office where he was performing the tonsillectomy on Mrs. Sarah Beltchman, 23.

Mrs. Beltchman, still under the influence of ether, was taken to a hospital, where the operation was completed.

MAVERICK VINDICATED

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., May 10 (AP)—Maury Maverick, jovial, wise cracking congressman of last year, stepped up today as San Antonio's brand new mayor, vindicated at the polls, happy in his victory and ready for next year's political jousts.

His hometowners, the people who knew his grandfather as a cattleman who gave the homeless cows in Texas his name, put Maverick back in public life yesterday by a big vote.

They did it so effectively that his arch political foe, C. K. Quin, the incumbent, conceded defeat with this simple statement:

"I was run over by a herd of stampeding Mavericks" (the term used in Texas to describe wild and woolly cattle that have strayed from the main herd).

But that was not the whole story to the people of San Antonio.

A Maverick was back in the saddle. The World War soldier, the statesman, the likeable Maury Maverick was back near the top, where he rode when times were good down here.

"I'm going to be a stuffed shirt," said Maverick early today. "I got beat for Congress for not being one."

That was all he said to the newsmen when they told him he had won.

Jews Open Court of Justice

NEW YORK, May 9 (AP)—The first Jewish court of justice in the United States, a rabbinical tribunal known as Beth Din, was functioning today within a few minutes' walk of Federal court, the State supreme court and Criminal court.

An announcement from the Conservative synagogue said the court would sit daily, except Saturdays and holidays, and would hear civil and religious cases based on Jewish law. All judgments and decisions are to be final and without appeal. Litigants are to agree in advance that the decisions will have legal standing.

From a religious viewpoint Beth Din is the highest court in Israel. It is composed of three rabbis, learned in Talmudic law, who are empowered to grant divorces, settle questions of ritual and ceremonial law, and decide whether a man may take a second wife.

Rabbi Louis Epstein, head of the Conservative Rabbinical Assembly of America, will preside over the court. Associated with him will be Rabbi Max Kadushin and Rabbi Isaac Klein.

Rabbi Epstein said the court would be available to Jews of all religious persuasions, but that there are many questions which lay courts can not decide.

"For instance," said the announcement, "where a Jewish couple obtains a civil divorce, they are not divorced in the Jewish law unless they obtain a divorce known as a 'get' from a competent rabbinical authority."

'LUCY STONE' PLAY OF MASSACHUSETTS WOMAN'S ZEAL

Fight for Equal Rights Theme of Stirring Drama

By PEGGY DOYLE

A great and gallant Massachusetts woman and her devotion to the cause of woman suffrage in the benighted days of the 19th century provide the theme for the Federal Theater production, "Lucy Stone," given last night at the Copley Theater.

Present at the world premiere of Maud Wood Park's chronicle play was the white-haired daughter of the celebrated feminist Alice Stone Blackwell whose own contributions to the cause of equal rights have been notable. In a fine and trenchant speech last night Miss Blackwell, a Boston University alumnae, lauded last night's B. U. Alumni benefit play for the Chinese war orphans. It was also pleased her mother would.

Location of the play is concerned with the time elapsing between 1850 and 1890. The play opens with a scene in the Stone farmhouse at West Brookfield, Mass. It is a late afternoon in fall and Lucy is helping her mother put up supper.

Hiram Marshall makes the girl Lucy interesting but not arresting in Maud Wood Park's book. Lucy Stone is presented as the rural lass who has been spelled brave, wholesome and fired with the zeal of a Joan of Arc to free women from their subjugated rating.

MENFOLK WERE SHOCKED

Lucy Stone's determination to go to college there to prepare herself for her self-chosen battle to emancipate women, is made manifest in the first scene in the Stone kitchen. It shocked the Stone menfolk a little but as Mrs. Stone and many years later when her daughter's name had become world famous I have so long defended her because she was my friend and stood until finally I got believing what I was saying all these years."

The first act's second scene finds Lucy at Oberlin College where she was the first Massachusetts woman to receive a college degree and tuition at a cost of $1.11 a week. A child of this went to her week's board.

ANTI-SLAVERY SPEECHES

From there she progresses to passing [illegible] at the request of William Lloyd Garrison. Some years later, to us [illegible] Cincinnati city [illegible] amused by her bloomer costumes of black and purple she dared wear. Henry Blackwell's [illegible] there. A year later in the same kitchen, while Henry [illegible] and she [illegible] words with [illegible] to be presented to her.

[illegible] marriage [illegible] Henry presented [illegible] marriage with the [illegible] would be [illegible] and women in this country [illegible] and [illegible] with [illegible] rough and unsteady. But last night it [illegible] with [illegible] time and applause.

THE UNITED STATES Department of Labor, headed by Miss Frances Perkins somewhat regretfully admits that women's whims cannot be regimented or milady's whims anticipated.

After eleven months' investigation, the best the Department is able to offer is a suggestion that manufacturers enlist the aid of "serious-minded women" from all walks of life who have a "quick-and-artistic sense" to assist in appraising style possibilities a year in advance.

But not even the usually reliable Washington's Women's Bureau is optimistic. Throughout the report there is a strong "you-will-do-it-at-your-own-risk" implication.

Uncle Sam is not the first ruler to cast a critical eye on feminine heeling or. Mussolini did it a few years ago. Queen Victoria ventured a few sarcastic comments. Oliver Cromwell raged in print and Parliament. Queen Elizabeth lost her temper in more than one historical "incident." Richelieu thundered his anger.

But feminine hats still continue to be as unpredictable as next year's weather.

It is not generally known that a [illegible] Boston [illegible] Mrs. Hale was King Charles the Second of France who made a triumphal entry into the City of Rouen in 1437 with a huge hat fashioned of fur [illegible] from a dead [illegible]

Human Side of News -1- by EDWIN C. HILL

WE MAY BE becoming a race of softies, but what won't we do to bring back alive a rare tropical fish? It's a big business now and fish-trappers in the miasmic swamps of the far jungles suffer [illegible] diggers, chiggers, red-ticks, beri-beri, Chagres fever, malarial mosquitoes, jungle ants, [illegible] and miss the five o'clock sporting extra just to find a fish with new, stranger or exotic trimmings.

C. W. Coates, aquarist of the New York Aquarium, tells of the incredible hazards and suffering of these latter-day fish scouts in a recently published newspaper article.

IN THE wildness of Brazil, Peru, British Guiana, Venezuela and a half-dozen other tropical countries, these men endure miseries which only the explorers might have had to go themselves some few [illegible] years ago.

There is [illegible] saving home [illegible] and what he has to [illegible] the [illegible] jungle lizard [illegible] and he'll [illegible] Dance Beane.

It was [illegible] ago that the [illegible] first got under way [illegible] years ago.

RARE TROPICAL FISH
"It's Big Business Now."

[illegible] it began to [illegible] men in [illegible] bers [illegible]

A Parisian [illegible] in China for many years, [illegible] some small [illegible] and [illegible] paradise fish which the Chinese have bred for thousands of years. That was pretty nearly the end of the modern home [illegible]

Before the World War the [illegible] ing interest in fancy fishes had spread to the United States.

It lagged considerably in the immediate post-war let-down and then was fanned up again by several big German concerns, pushing into Borneo, the Congo and British Guiana, bringing back fish with elegant and gaudy trimmings, or else weirdly cock-eyed, and therefore valuable.

ON THIS SIDE, companies were financed and ships began shoving into remote tropical tide-rivers with fish hotels aboard, ranging in cost from $10,000 to $500,000.

Fishes not more than an inch long brought up to $25 and sometimes the catch would run up to 10,000.

In 1936, a big tropical fish ship, prowling up the Amazon trapped a tiny fish with a red light on one side like a Neon light. They named it Neon [illegible] the Tetra being the generic name of this type of fish. They made quite a haul of the quarter-inch little fellow and landed them up here at around $100 a pair.

Several pairs [illegible] in the [illegible] and they are now swimming [illegible] Paris.

Political Parade -1- by GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN

WASHINGTON, May 10—For more than six weeks Mme. Perkins [illegible] most feeble [illegible] have ever had [illegible] national [illegible]

Under [illegible] administration [illegible] have been one that would [illegible] her in the first [illegible] the lady would have been replaced long ago with a [illegible] man who knew something about labor and could do a [illegible] pending in front [illegible] labor [illegible]

For six weeks the New Deal Administration permitted the nation to drift to the verge of industrial calamity. Why was this?

MR. ROOSEVELT long ago should have summoned John L. Lewis and [illegible] to the White [illegible] and told them to get back to work, producing coal [illegible] agreement which expired March 31.

Now, there were several things in the way of this simple approach to averting a nation-wide and paralyzing coal strike.

In the first place, behind the deadlock between Lewis and the coal operators is the battle between C. I. O. and the A. F. of L.

The final impasse came on the penalty clause of the old agreement, under which the miners would be financially penalized for unauthorized strikes, and Lewis' demand for the closed shop, in which demand he took exactly the opposite position the C. I. O. insists upon under the Wagner Act—collective bargaining.

"He Got Away With It."

Lewis insisted on eating his cake and having it, too, and so strong is he with the New Deal, to whose campaign chest he contributed $500,000 in 1936, that he got away with it, while the country was brought to the verge of industrial paralysis through the cutting off of coal.

If Lewis yielded on the penalty clause and the closed shop, the way would have been opened to the organization of the miners [illegible] by the A. F. of L.

If President Roosevelt had intervened short of the verge of [illegible] he would have appeared to favor one side against the other. Intervention [illegible] could not fail to [illegible] A. F. of L. and the [illegible] C. I. O. as [illegible] by the fact that it is [illegible] the annual [illegible] A. F. of L. [illegible] Congress [illegible] that it is [illegible] C. I. O.

THIS is the whole vital question of the nation's coal supply [illegible] involved in New Deal [illegible] C. I. O. politics.

There have been other coal strikes. Other Presidents, in time of national emergency, did not hesitate to smash them.

Attorney-General A. Mitchell Palmer, in 1920, under President Wilson, threatened to have John L. Lewis put in jail for violating an injunction to call off the great coal strike of that year. A federal judge in Indianapolis stood ready to put John in the hoosgow, when Lewis yielded at 2 o'clock on the fateful morning with his historic remark.

Austen Lake:

LEFTY GROVE JOKES AS SOX HOP CLOUDS

CHICAGO, Ill., May 10—This is being written as the Red Sox sky-special scuds above Missouri's checkerboard farm fields. Yonder the turbid Mississippi winds like a mud-colored snake and dotted over the terrain yesterday's rains have left little lakes, bright as mirrors in the reflected sunset.

AUSTEN LAKE

We are 22 in the big nickeled bird, 16 athletes, 5 word-painters and a flash-light man. Some have never flown before and wear perplexed puckers on their brows. Others press noses against the little glass hutches and peer curiously at the twi-lit ground. Several newsmen, harassed by early deadlines, sit with toy typewriters on their laps, tapping for the breakfast editions and squinting through the curl of cigaret smoke.

Ahead, somewhere in the rose glow of sunset is the first section of this flight, carrying the rest of the Sox and 7 disgruntled travellers, who were obliged to delay nearly an hour while the players stripped off their sweat-soaked woolens and hurriedly showered.

In the waist of our plane Lefty Grove, with his macabre sense of humor, makes gruesome jokes. "This here," he barks with his airedale's voice, "has the makin's of the best news story of the year." What he means by the "makin's" is, obviously, a disastrous crash. The truth of his sombre jape is conceded by silence.

* * *

Joe Vosmik the blond outfielder studies a time chart, leaning [illegible] that was a helter-skelter [illegible] hurrying toward the plane ... that appalling train would not have [illegible] to make a finger-tip snatch of Cliff's potential double. He had saved Wilson's life.

A journalist pauses in his piano-forte piece and complains half-heartedly about having [illegible] the late edition stuff during the hectic eighth. The newsmen dutiful of a hasty departure for the airport, had uncased their typewriters and begun forehandedly to type introductory paragraphs. It seemed safe. The Sox were leading 7 to 4. The situation was well in hand.

So the newsmen tapped out those [illegible] of the newspaper trade which go over the wires headed, "Guess Intro" and the precautionary notes to the desk editor "Hold for final verification."

They began to tell prematurely how Jimmy Foxx, with a bruised thumb, a bad sinus and a heavy chest congestion, had hammered out a 450-foot homer to bring home the pig's brisket, when a load of grief fell on their necks.

Billy Sullivan, the talented son of a talented father, came in to ghost-hit for his pitcher with two mates on base, and had golfed the first pitch onto the right field pavilion. So the score was tied, and the journalists began tapping out fresh, tentative leads saying how the Red Sox had taken convulsions with victory in sight and had muffed a heart-rending struggle by the score of dash-to-dash.

Gabby's Hustling Cubs Invade Beehive Today

Charles Leo Hartnett had the ghost of a smile playing around his generously proportioned features as he wended his way to the Bees' Hive in Allston today.

"CAN'T WORRY ME," chirps Gabby Hartnett despite the injury jinx that has hit his club. The Cubs pilot reads the Boston American while getting his size 14's shined

Milt[illegible] Gabby was feeling [illegible] jaw [illegible] a bit, [illegible] CUBS IN FIGHT [illegible] the Western clubs to hit the Boston [illegible] nothing but the rockiest going from [illegible] a couple more.

All year long Casey Stengel boss of the Hive men, refused to predict the Bees' victory chances until he had a chance to compare them with the westerners here at home.

[illegible] seen enough of them for the time being and in order to wash out the brown taste of five straight defeats tossed Lou Fette, one of his aces, at the visiting lineman this afternoon.

FEW TRADERS IN MARKET

Stengel and [illegible] are doing [illegible] holes in the Bees' [illegible] fices to get the power and strength so much needed.

But there [illegible] and buying markets dull. At least

SOX GAME CALLED; CRONIN OPTIMISTIC

The Red Sox-White Sox game scheduled for today was postponed because of cold weather and will be played as part of a doubleheader at a later date.

CHICAGO, May 10 (AP)—You hear on all sides that the major leagues harvested a bumper rookie crop this season and Joe Cronin, pilot of the first-place Boston Red Sox, would be the last to deny it.

The pinnacle position of the high-flying (in more ways than one) Sox is due considerably to the sensational work of three

The Grand Stand Manager

The debate over the playing ability of Ted Williams, youthful Red Sox slugger, has got the fans steamed up. The fans are bombarding "The Grandstand Manager" with letters in which they debate the hitting and fielding of the Sox rookie.

Another fan asks that the ball clubs build supports on the back of the bleacher seats.

You may become a contributor to The Grandstand Manager. It is to this column.

All letters should be restricted to 100 words, and should be written on one side of the paper only. Address all communications to "The Grandstand Manager" Boston Evening American No. 5 Winthrop Square, Boston.

Speaks for Williams

Though a Bees' fan through and through (Joe Clancy please note) I was infuriated by Fred Handel's letter in Saturday's column. His implication that Rookie Ted Williams isn't what he's cracked up to be shows his complete ignorance of Ted, his youth and his extraordinary ability.

The only trouble with Ted is that he's too good, and his hatless head may be turned by mutual admiration of Sox and Bees fans alike. All kinds of luck to that infectious youngster, with a powerful grip on a doubly powerful bat.

Tribute to Stratton

A forlorn figure stood alone out on a mound in Chicago recently, and tossed his last major league pitch skyward amidst the shouts of some 45,000 fans.

It has always been my belief that as this same pathetic soul walked unflinchingly toward the clubhouse to accept the farewells and best wishes of the entire world of baseball he could hear above the frenzied cheers of that vast throng one solitary voice shouting a familiar name, yet one which he would never hear announced in quite the same way again.

"Stratton now pitching for Chicago—Stratton!"

Yours truly
JOE HARKINS

Backs for Bleachers

The fans who really and truly love baseball, in my opinion, should have some consideration for their comfort. It seems to me that it would be a good idea to have the bleachers fixed so that the backs of the customers will have some relief.

I mean by that, that there should be boards or some other form of protection for the customers to lean back on to rest their tired backs. All other amusements cater to the public's comfort, but it seems to me that the baseball fans, the real true rooters of the game, should have consideration.

J. J. HERMANN,

Elbie Fletcher's Swing

Ever since his coming to the Boston Nationals I have keenly followed the progress of Elbie Fletcher the Bees' first baseman.

It seems to me that Elbie has been the victim of some mighty poor coaching, else he would now be a much better batsman than he is. Anyone with any knowledge of baseball can see that Fletcher has a faulty swing. He lurches his chest and shoulders at the ball in an effort to get distance. Whereas, if he had been properly coached to get his wrists and forearms into his swing, the chances are he would get far more base hits.

However, I'm still rooting for Elbie to come through.

The Boston fans are great. They certainly deserve a break. It's about time we had a pennant here. Tom Yawkey did his best by buying Foxx, Grove and the rest, adding Auker this year, and when the smoke clears away — that

With the announcement of the purchase of Lou Finney by the Red Sox, look for the following announcement in the near future.

"Finney to play first base and Double X Jimmy will move over to third base."

Not a bad move either in view of the fact that Finney is quite a first baseman with Foxx just as classy at the third sack and which would add some more speed and punch to the present Red Sox infield which naturally misses a real good baseman like Mike Higgins.

P. SIGNOR GEARY,
7 Anderson street, Boston, Mass.

I don't believe Ted Williams is as great a ball player as some of the fans think he is. He takes too full a swing at the ball, and when the pitchers get his number they will send him back to the bench the quickest route when there are men on the bases.

STEPHEN FOLEY,
Medford.

McKechnie Sends Weaver to Minors

PHILADELPHIA, May 10 (INS)—Manager Bill McKechnie of the [illegible] Reds announced that Pitcher Jim Weaver had been released outright to the Louisville Club of the American Association. Weaver, a 6 foot, 6 inch right-hander scaling 230 pounds, is 33 and a veteran of 10 seasons in baseball.

Cronin Lauds Morale of Sox On Road Trip

freshmen—Outfielder Ted Williams, Pitcher Morrow and Third baseman Jim Tabor.

Cronin and his crew arrived from St. Louis last night in two chartered planes after protecting their 4-game American League lead by defeating the Browns.

Williams, one of the rookies personally contributed this victory, smacking a three-run homer in the 10th inning to sew up the game. He has won two appearances, batted games and lost one. In [illegible] a jagged, ragged game [illegible] Cronin said the early showing [illegible] the players.

"We have great morale on the club now," he said. "The boys are going after every game as if it were the last. Our rookies, Williams, Rich and Tabor, have been going good, although Tabor's hitting in tough luck right now. Of course, they play good one day and maybe not so good the next, but you have to expect that of first-year men."

Cronin pointed out that we had been every team except the White Sox, and he thought the league [illegible] "The Browns are greatly improved, and I think Cleveland and Detroit will be plenty tough as soon as their pitching gets straightened out. We have run into stiff competition all around the circuit, which indicates we may have quite a peasant [illegible] all the way."

Ahead in the deep purple of night the first phosphorescent fringe of Chicago looms. Aerial beacons rotate fingers of light, and the clotted pools of the downtown area swim underneath. St. Louis and the hurly-burly of the ball game seemed very far behind. Ho-hum! This afternoon St. Louis. Tonight Chicago. Louisville Friday and Washington Saturday. Nothing to do but tomorrow.

Jimmy Slattery Is Back Again

Once Called the New Dempsey

THEY CALLED him the "new Jack Dempsey." He had jet black hair, flashing eyes and a perfect athletic body.

It was in the Summer of 1925 and he sat across the table from me in the Astor Hotel. He looked out on Broadway, and the roaring crowd thrilled him. He was happy he was living, and a sensation in the boxing game.

The athlete was only 21 years of age and his career still seemed to be very much in front of him.

The youngster's name was Jimmy Slattery. He was of Irish-American stock and came from the fourth ward in Buffalo.

Slattery had been a boxing sensation in bouts held in Buffalo. Under the rules of the New York Athletic Commission, boxers under 21 years of age were only permitted to box six rounds. Even in these limited round matches Slattery drew capacity crowds.

Charley Murray used to promote boxing in Buffalo, and he believed that a bout between Slattery and "Young" Stribling would prove a natural. Murray offered Pa Stribling a $3,000 guarantee, and the latter accepted it. At the time Pa Stribling didn't realize Buffalo had a large auditorium and that the match was a natural.

Murray sold the show to the fans as a battle between Slattery, the representative of the Irish, and Stribling, the favored boxer of the Ku Klux Klan which at the time was under heavy fire. The result was that a detail of mounted police was required to keep the crowd under control on the night of the match.

Thousands were unable to gain admittance to the Auditorium, while the gate receipts hit $30,000. Pa Stribling almost fainted when he gazed upon the huge gathering, but he went through on his contract calling for only $3000.

Slattery won the decision, and later repeated his feat in New York. Jimmy also outscored Jack Delaney before a capacity crowd in the New York Garden.

Lost Bout to Joe Egan

BOXING IS often stranger than fiction, and during the rise of Slattery he was signed to meet Joe Egan of Dorchester. Egan had long past the crest of his fistic peak at the time, but went in and won the decision on boxing skill and experience. In a return bout, Slattery knocked out Egan in a round.

As Slattery talked with me across the table at the Astor, he was confident he would become a champion. He was matched to meet Dave Shade in one of the ball parks at a show being staged by Humbert Fugazy and which was also featuring Harry Willis against Charley Weinert.

Slattery believed his punch and speed would enable him to win from Shade.

The night of the bout finally came, and 60,000 persons were in attendance when Slattery and Shade entered the ring. The middleweight from the fourth ward of Buffalo was a favorite to win.

Shade, however, had other ideas. Dave kept bobbing up and down, and succeeded in keeping his chin near the floor of the ring most of the time.

Slattery stood erect, his guard held high. He was trying to figure out what to do in the third round when Shade suddenly came bouncing up off the canvas with his right hand flying through the air. Slattery was so astonished by the unexpected move that he stood there in the center of the ring motionless. The punch swept over Jimmy's guard, landed on his jaw and knocked him out.

Slattery Hits the Fistic Toboggan

THERE WERE more come back attempts, but none of them clicked. Meanwhile Jimmy forgot the rules of training. He took his fun as he found it, and it started him on the way out of the boxing game.

Slattery lost his trim appearance, the fire from his punch and the speed from his feet. It was not long before Slattery faded out of the boxing game, and ended on a PWA job in Buffalo.

At the age of 34 Slattery has returned to the game that promised such a brilliant future for him 14 years ago. He is once more punching the bag in the gym, and trying to nail elusive, young sparring partners with punches.

Jimmy has been disillusioned as far as boxing is concerned. He is back in the ring because he needs money, and he believes he can earn it with the power of his fists.

Slattery points to the success of Jimmy Braddock when he came up off a relief roll in Jersey to win the heavyweight championship from Max Baer.

Braddock is getting ready for a tour to England that will include bouts with Len Harvey and Jack Doyle.

If Slattery can fight even half as good as he could when in his early twenties he believes he has a chance to beat most of the present day boxers of his weight.

It is likely Slattery will box as a light heavyweight.

Slattery will make a sentimental appeal to the fans, and if he is not over matched he will be able to get some coffee and cake money.

Boston Roller Skaters Again Clout Hollywood

Boston's second night of witnessing the whirling dervishes of flashing roller skates took place before a capacity crowd of over 9000 spectators, who watched the Boston White Shirts again take the measure of Eleanor Powell's Hollywood All-Stars in the Boston Arena.

In the first half of the Roller Derby, Boston led by the tune of 6-2. In the second half of the series Jeane Carter of Chicago, Ill., heading the attack for the Bostonians, managed to score three points. The others of her unit helped to roll up the total. At the end of the second half unlucky "number 13" faced both sides. An overtime, similar to that of basketball and hockey, which is used in the Roller Derby, went into order.

SPORTS AID TO BEAUTY FOR GIRLS

Ferris Defends Competition for Fair Sex

Points With Pride to Eleanor Holm

Contrary to popular fallacy, the field of sports boasts of both good looks and good sportsmanship on the part of its lady competitors, Daniel J. Ferris declared today.

Ferris, who qualifies as an expert in the matter through position as secretary-treasurer of the National Amateur Athletic Union, came to the defense of American womanhood in the realm of sports and cited examples to prove it.

"I've heard a lot of criticism from men in the sports world. They say there are no good-looking women athletes, but I disagree," he said. "I've also had people complain to me that games make women look hard. But I still don't think so."

SWIMMERS ON TOP

Ferris gives swimming the monopoly on beauty, but adds that basketball has a "lot of pretty girls."

"Swimming seems to round them out best and gives women more pleasing lines," he said. "But I believe that all sports add to the physique. Basketball players evidently agree with me as beauty contests are held at each national championship."

He sides with the judges and declares that Miss Ludene Duke, winner of the beauty crown at the last national championship, is the most beautiful of cage queens, but hesitated before choosing the aquatic queen.

"I believe Eleanor Holm is my choice," he said. "But Marjorie Gestring, Ruth Jump, Dorothy Payton Hill, Ann Goednik and many others are definitely in the running for beauty honors."

ELEANOR HOLM

MOST GIRLS MARRY

Swimming seems to have a monopoly as the sport contributing the most movie players, he declared.

"There aren't many athletes who go into motion picture work, but Helene Madison, Eleanor Holm, Georgia Coleman and Josephine McKim among the swimmers, and E. Catherwood, Olympic high jump champion, have all tried their hand at acting," he said. "Most of the women in sports marry and settle down."

In the field of tennis he nominates Alice Marble, Helen Wills Moody and Kay Stammers and Dorothy Kirby is his choice for golf.

Louise Weigel and her sister, Estelle Weigel, of Buffalo, N. Y. rate among the prettiest of the amateur skaters, he believes, and Elizabeth Robinson, an Olympic sprinter, gets the nod in track events.

Switching from beauty to sportsmanship, Ferris said:

"I think women display every bit as much good spirit and fair play as men."

POMPOON CHOICE IN CLASSIC

Faces Stiff Opposition in Dixie Handicap

BALTIMORE, May 10 (AP)—A field of 16 sturdy campaigners, topped by last year's winner, Pompoon, and including some of the best stake racers in the business, was named for today's $20,000 Dixie Handicap at Pimlico—a curtain raiser for Saturday's rich Preakness.

Meanwhile, the $50,000 Preakness shaped up as more of an acid test for the greatness of Johnstown, the speedy Kentucky Derby winner. Trainers of Ciencia, the filly who won gold and glory in the Santa Anita Derby, announced she would be a sure starter in the race that will go far toward settling the three-year-old champion.

Injured recently in shipping from New York, Ciencia has come around nicely and apparently is ready to make her bid to become the third filly ever to lead the way home in the Preakness.

CIENCIA TO GO

"She will go in the Preakness unless something happens to keep her out," said Miss Mary Hirsch, her temporary trainer, "and that seems unlikely now. She has been working well and is in awfully good shape."

Pompoon will be topweighted with 125 pounds as he attempts to win his second straight Dixie victory in its 35th renewal tomorrow. Last year he set a track record of 1:56 4-5 for the mile and three-sixteenths distance from a stall gate start. Seabiscuit did the distance in 1:56 3-5 against War Admiral in their historic duel here last November, but from a walk-up start.

Heather Broom, owned by Jock Whitney and trained by Earl Sande, which will meet Johnstown and Challedon again in Preakness. Heather Broom finished third in the Derby.

Pompoon will face such competitors as Marshall Field's Sir Damion, second in the Widener, and Townsend B. Martin's Cravat. Cravat will carry 120 pounds with Sir Damion down for 113.

Other tough entries are: Mrs. Parker Corning's Thanksgiving, given third weight of 120 pounds; Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Heelfly; Ral Parr's Hypocrite and W. L. Brann's Aethelwold, all recent winners.

JACOLA IN RACE

Completing the field are Edward Friendly's Jacola, Joe W. Brown's Brown King, Belair Stud's Isolater, Thomas J. Healey's Tatter-demalion, Brandywine stable's Masked General, Shandon farm's Burning Star, Walter M. Jeffords' Jolly Tar, H. Januska's Invermark and Brann's Challepen, entered with Aethelwold.

Vanderbilt's Impound and Saratoga stable's Volitant, two Preakness entries, worked out today with King ranch's Ciencia, only filly named for the race.

'Fox' Draws Top Weight In Classic

Fighting Fox draws top weight in the Plymouth Rock Handicap, the opening day stake feature at Suffolk Downs next Monday, according to weights released by Racing Secretary Charle J. McLennan.

He has assigned 124 pounds to the Belair Stud's great horse, stablemate of Johnstown.

Rough Time, the Yanecy Christmas favorite of New Englanders, draws second honors with an assignment of 122 pounds, while Sun Egret, from the A. C. C. Stable gets in with 119.

The weights assigned all horses for this $5000 added, six furlong test on opening day at Suffolk Downs are as follows: Accolade 113, Blind Eagle 100, Blind Pig 103, Be Blue 110, Battle Jack 110, Court Dance 108, Dorothy Rock 105, Early Delivery 110, Early Autumn 108, Fighting Fox 124, Forty Eight 103, Farrago 105, Gallant Stroke 106, Infidox 103, Natty Boy 109, Preeminent 112, Panther Creek 104, Pagliacci 112, Rough Time 122, Rhodium 102, Sun Egret 119, Slow Motion 109, Singe Beauty 108, Toddle On 107, Woodsaw 100, Wise Prince 113, Zoic 100.

Cornell Back On Eli Slate

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 10 (AP)—Malcolm Farmer, chairman of athletics, announced Yale's 1940 football schedule. Highlights of the eight-game slate include the reappearance of Cornell after a lapse of three years, and a meeting with the University of Virginia for the first time since 1916.

The schedule:

October 5, Virginia; 12, Pennsylvania, away; 19, Dartmouth; 28, Navy.
November 2, Brown; 9, Cornell; 16, Princeton, away; 23, Harvard.

Famous Tiger Gardners Sought

DETROIT, May 10 (AP)—One of baseball's greatest outfields — Ty Cobb, Sam Crawford and Bobby Veach—may be reassembled again if only for a few innings.

The Detroit old time ball players association is planning an exhibition game on June 7 for a Connie Mack Day celebration. The regularly scheduled game between Mack's Philadelphia Athletics and the Detroit Tigers will follow the contest.

Association officials said that Cobb, now a San Francisco realtor, and Veach, a Detroiter, were certain to play but that no reply had been received to an invitation extended Crawford.

Guggino Verdicts Spoldi in Eight

Guggino got off to a fast start, landing repeatedly with his left and opening a cut under Spoldi's right eye. The Italian came back in the fourth with a flurry of short punches that drew blood from Guggino's nose, but Guggino staved off further attempts to get in close.

BELLINGHAM, Wash., May 10 (AP)—Outfielder Ed Stewart of Vancouver swung so hard at a fast one that he knocked himself out last night. He missed the ball, hit himself in the head.

Pari-Mutuels Advance in N.Y.

ALBANY, N. Y., May 10 (INS)—The Senate finance committee today reported favorably the Dunnigan resolution legalizing pari-mutuel betting at New York State race tracks. The measure was to be voted on later in the day.

If the resolution is approved by this legislature, the proposed constitutional amendment will be placed before voters next November. An identical resolution was passed by the 1938 legislature.

Advocates of the Dunnigan resolution said New York must act to legalize the pari-mutuel machines this year or it will lose much of its racing revenue to New Jersey, where there will be a popular vote on pari-mutuels in June.

Twyble to Hurl For Mass. State

AMHERST, May 10 — Carlton Twyble, Gilbertville junior, will take the mound this afternoon at Tech Field, Worcester, as Coach Eb Caraway sends his Massachusetts State varsity nine after its fifth straight victory at the expense of Worcester Tech.

Coach Pete Bigler of Tech will assign his star southpaw, Al Raslavsky, the task of preserving the undefeated record the Engineers now enjoy and at the same time snapping the winning streak of State.

Bowdoin Track Aces Compete in I.C. 4-A.

NEW YORK, May 10 (INS)—Entries of five colleges in the Intercollegiate A. A. A. A. track and field championships on Randalls Island, May 26 and 27, were on file today.

The colleges were Penn, Colgate, Bowdoin, West Virginia and Virginia. The latter, recently elected, entered one man. Penn entered 17, Colgate 8, Bowdoin 7 and West Virginia also 1.

Helen Jacobs Seeks Wimbledon Title

PLYMOUTH, England, May 10 (AP)—Helen Jacobs arrived on the Manhattan today and predicted she had a 50-50 chance of winning the Wimbledon tennis singles, which she last won in 1936.

"I have no idea how I shall play when I start practice," she said. "I have been so busy with my novel I haven't had time for practice."

She hopes to play in two tournaments preliminary to Wimbledon.

JOHNSTOWN 1 TO 3 CHOICE IN PREAKNESS

Derby Champ Can Win in Mud, Says Trainer

BALTIMORE, May 10 (INS)—Johnstown, Challedon, Gilded Knight and Impound.

That's the big four of the 49th running of the $50,000 Preakness Saturday as they lined up today.

The son of Jamestown, easy winner of the Kentucky Derby last Saturday, is fit and ready to capture the prized Woodlawn vase and the rich purse that goes with it in the Maryland turf classic.

The champ looked fine today and it appears that Saturday's race will be "just another Derby romp." His stock has been boosted to such an extent for the Preakness that he likely will be rated at 1 to 3, the shortest priced favorite ever to break for a Preakness running.

However, the big question here today is "can Johnstown run in the mud?"

And Johnstown's trainer, "Sunny Jim" Fitzsimmons, replied:

"A good horse can run on any track.

"A good mud-runner is a horse that can go to the front and toss mud into the faces of the other horses.

"And Johnstown can certainly do that."

Fitzsimmons declared that a muddy track doesn't worry him.

"I think that Johnstown can beat any three-year-old in training over any kind of a track."

SCHAEFFER WANTS MUD

On the other hand, Louis Schaeffer, trainer of Challedon, runner-up in the Blue Grass classic, said he is hoping for a muddy track in the Preakness.

Schaeffer knows the Preakness; he rode Dr. Freeland to victory in the 1929 renewal of the Preakness.

Challedon's backers are hoping such a combination of experience will contribute to his victory over Johnstown.

Gilded Knight, to be coupled with Johnstown Saturday, appears to be the unknown quantity and Trainer Fitzsimmons finds himself in a dilemma, for he trains the Belair Stud and Wheatley Stables; in the former stable is Johnstown and in the latter is Gilded Knight — he has to race both horses for different owners.

"Both Johnstown and Gilded Knight should finish one two Saturday," Fitzsimmons said.

"There never has been a fitter horse than Johnstown is at present. He will be worked out today and twice more before Saturday."

Gilded Knight, entered in the $2500 Survivor Stakes, feature of yesterday's Pimlico card, came in the winner after being bumped entering the homestretch.

A pair of Preakness candidates, Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Impound and Saratoga Stables' Volitant, were given speed workout yesterday. Both had passed up the Derby.

Technician, supplementary nominee for the Preakness, will not run. Trainer Ben Jones said the horse will be given a long rest.

Seeks Open Aid For Athletes

ANN ARBOR, Mich., May 10 (INS)—Open subsidization of athletes, three meals a day for football players and tuition scholarships for athletes today was advocated by the University of Michigan student senate.

The senate unanimously adopted this three-point program:

1. Extension of the training table to provide three meals a day for football players during the season. (One meal will be provided daily next season.)

2. Tuition scholarships to be awarded to all athletes on the same basis as the publication scholarships now in existence. (The publication scholarships provide an annual prize to student workers on all publications who maintain an AB average for four consecutive semesters.)

3. Action through Big Ten athletic organization to provide standard rules for subsidization for all Big Ten schools.

Mascianica In Quarter

Frank Mascianica, who right now appears to be the leading 220-and quarter-miler in New England intercollegiate ranks, will run the quarter against Springfield Friday, Jerry Tatton decided this morning.

Mascianica ran away from the field in the 220 of the triangular meet with Harvard and Holy Cross at the Stadium two weeks ago and last Saturday at New Hampshire he won the quarter in 50.1, despite the fact that he had to battle a strong wind down the long stretch.

Tatton is as yet undecided just where he will run Mascianica in the New England's a week from Saturday at Durham. Last year the Everett boy was third behind Dick Gill of Boston College and Huck Quinn of New Hampshire.

Only 18 Left In Exclusive Speedway Club

INDIANAPOLIS, May 10 (AP)—With its ranks hard hit by death, automobile racing's "100-Mile-An-Hour Club," which calls itself "the most exclusive club in the world," sent out the call today for its annual meeting and there is not a single new member to fill the places made vacant by the deaths of two drivers since last May.

It's a club composed of automobile race drivers who have driven the full 500 miles of an Indianapolis motor speedway race at an average of 100 miles an hour or better.

In all speedway history—dating back to 1911—there have been only twenty-four men to accomplish that feat. A few of them, such as Wilbur Shaw of Indianapolis, the club president, and Louis Meyer of Huntington Park, Cal., three-time winner of the race, have done it several times, but most of the drivers here for the 1939 race still are trying to win their club membership.

NO NEW MEMBERS

Only five drivers completed the full 500 miles of last year's race and all of them previously had qualified for club membership.

Six members, in all, have been killed—every one of them in an automobile, either a race car or a pleasure vehicle.

The two killed since the last meeting were Chet Gardner of Long Beach, Cal., and William C. (Wild Bill) Cummings of Indianapolis. Gardner was killed two days before Labor Day at Flemington, N. J., while trying to avoid hitting a child that ran across the track while the driver was practicing for a race. Cummings was killed here last winter in a traffic accident.

LOU FETTE ASSIGNED FOR DUTY AT BEEHIVE

six of the National League clubs are in the same fix, all trying to add punch and none wants to help the other fellow lest he kiss himself out of the pennant.

"At that we're not as badly off as we could be," says Stengel. "Look at the Giants, one of the three clubs with the most money to spend for the finest players, with lots of youth and where are they? They're not doing as well as we are.

"We in Boston have tried to strengthen the Bees. We still are for that matter. We figured we had new power when we started off this year, with the addition of Al Simmons, Buddy Hassett, Henie Majeski, Eddie Miller and some of the others.

CASEY OPTIMISTIC

"But we couldn't know in advance that Majeski would be lost to us or that Buddy Hassett would get hurt or that some of our other acquisitions would fall us so badly.

"But I still see a few good things to cheer about. Things which may eventually pull us out into the open. Hassett will shortly be normal. Majeski will eventually be of value. And we have four real bits of sunshine in the promise held out by Miller, Bill Posedel, Phil Masi and young Tom Earley."
